

Khaz Finley

Khaz Finley joined the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland as an outreach and education coordinator in 2018. In 2019, he became supervisor of education and museum outreach. He is responsible for overseeing the Money Museum as well as leading and guiding program development and execution for the department throughout the Bank's four-state district with an emphasis on outreach efforts in Cleveland and Akron.

Prior to joining the Cleveland Fed, Khaz held a variety of roles in multiple school districts throughout Northeastern Ohio. For 17 years he was responsible for leading classroom instruction, developing and creating programs (PBIS, career development, mentorship), and staff professional development in districts including Cleveland Metropolitan and Cleveland Heights - University Heights.

Khaz holds a Bachelor of Science in Educational Studies and a Master of Science in Industrial Organizational Psychology both from Grand Canyon University.